Relatives of Those Killed or Injured on the Fort Wayne Railroad While Going to Washington Hear That Repairs on he Line Have Been Made Hastily.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 4.—Developments in the fatal railroad wreck of last night on the Fort Wayne Railroad at Emsworth, Pa, are of such a nature that serious trouble threatened by the Cleveland men who both trains which crashed together, killing at least seven or eight and maining sixty of those on the way to the inauguration at Washington. Privates Lemen. Smythe and Keene of the Cleveland Battalion, which was in the first train, are yet missing and are thought to have urned in the wreck. This would bring the total list of dead to ten, while about five of those injured are expected and relatives of those injured or dead this morning became excited-when the story was circulated that the block of the road, in which the accident took place, had not been in working order for two days, but that it was repaired quietly his morning. This cannot be verified, but there are those surviving of the Cleveland party who assert that they will sift the matter to the bottom.

The choice of two opinions is given, that the block system did not work on this occasion or that the engineer disobeyed orders. The engineer and fireman in this case both declare that they are blameless.

Fagman Craven, who was supposed to have gone back to flag the second section of the train, has not been found; at least, he has not been seen by those on the wrecked train who spent the day looking for him. Supt. Whiting of this division of the Pennsylvania road said this evening that Craven would be on hand when wanted. Fifty passengers on the ill fated train willswear that Craven did not leave the first section at all, that he made no effort to flag the train, thinking, perhaps, that the block system would hold the second section. Attorney H. Lindall Smith of Cleveland, law partner of Major McQuigg, who escaped with his life, announced to-night that the injured and friends of the dead would begin suits against the Pennsylvania road, but not in Pennsylvania.

There was a fight last night between employees of the Pennsylvania road and Cleveland friends of a party of wounded. When the train bearing many wounded reached Allegheny, surgeons from the Allegheny General Hospital sought to board the train and assist in taking the wounded off, but were told they could not come on, that the injured were to be taken to the West Penn Hospital, about four miles

As the injured had been allowed to lie for two hours already before the road got a train to them, this made the Cleveland survivors angry, and several of the privates, assisted by Dr. C. K. Brady of Cleveland, demanded that the injured be taken off then and there, and to the nearest hospital. A Pennsylvania road detective pulled out his badge and called on his fellow officers to assist in making arrests, but like a flash the detective was covered by guns in the hands of angry soldiers, who backed him and the rest of the detectives off the train, and then the injured were carried off.

Deputy Sheriff Porges has received an attachment for $4,500 against Brodie L. Duke which was obtained by Blandy, Mooney & Shipman, attorneys for A. Norden & Co., cotton brokers, on a claim growing out of a cotton speculative transaction. On Dec. 22, 1863, they sold 2,000 bales of cotton short on the Cotton Exchange here for his account at 12,98 which was covered s account at 12.98, which was covered same day at 13.44, resulting in a loss on the same day at 13.44, resulting in a denial of $4,500. Mr. Duke has entered a denial in the case, alleging that the brokers mis-interpreted his orders, which were by tele-graph. The attachment was served on the superintendent of Bellevue Hospital and also at the District Attorney's office, where Mr. Duke, it is said, has or had bonds in storage.

GOSSIP OF WALL STREET.

Expectations of a poor bank statement being realized, the publication yesterday of the week's banking results was the signal for a demonstration against the market, which was no sooner begun, however, than it was checked by fresh buying of a more spirited character than any that had been seen earlier in the session. The market closed with an exhibition of general strength. The theory of bearish traders was that it håd been put up after a poor bank statement with a view to bringing about a strong opening on Monday on which to sell stock. Less suspicious followers of the market were very favorably impressed by its recovery from Friday's depression. The stocks sold in Friday's trading in anticipation of a poor bank statement were not recovered at any

The professional element is bearishly inclined. Operations on the short side, however, are restrained by the experience that wherever pressure is applied resistance is offered. The facility with which stocks are absorbed when pressed for sale is very discouraging to bear traders.

General commission business fell off steadily last week and was almost entirely absent as a factor in yesterday's market. Commentators are alternately sceptical because there is so little public interest and suspicious because they believe that some of the larger bull interests have been liquidating on a large scale in the pastfew weeks. The source of continued buying power in these circumstances is not easily determined. There has been a big semi-professional speculation in the market, brokers say, unsupported by any such general public participation as in the wild bull market of 1901-02. Commission houses are not loaded up with stocks. is room, everybody says, for a large distribu-tion of stocks to commission houses if only the desired public interest can be aroused. Those who believe that it can be are expecting to see it manifest itself under the right kind of leadership in the low priced stocks. The speculative possibilities of the higher priced railroad issues, especially those that have figured so prominently in rumors of great deals, are supposed by conservative observers to have been largely exhausted. Not so, however, with many of the low priced stocks, some of which have not shared at all in the market's advance.

Brokers find their more experienced clients to be ultra-conservative on the market. Their buying and selling orders about balance. It is almost a daily occurrence in any of the older commission houses for some client to come in with stocks which he had been able to carry all through the bear market and ask to have them sold. This sort of straggling liquidation has been going on steadily for many weeks at this level. Advances some of the higher priced stocks since the first of the year have enabled many who bought in the bull market of 1901-02 to see over the top of their speculations for the first time. The newer public element, what there is of it, is much more enthustastic. "When you speak of outside business," said the head of a large Western house last week, "I understand you to mean some new interest in the market, as that of a man who brings als money in and wants to buy something We see very little of that. regular clients, however, are trading on a larger scale than ever before. All we need to get business of that character is an active The habitual wire public will trade all the time and on an ever increasing scale if it has the market to do it in. The occasional public has not appeared."

William F. Zeller has entered the firm of Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington, He was formerly with Sidney C. Love & Co.

Each successive dividend that an industrial stock pays improves its standing as an investment, as collateral at the bank and in public estimation. Sugar, for example, is as acceptable in a broker's loan envelope at his bank as any railroad stock.

It is said by persons who have been very active recently in Union Pacific and who probably know, therefore, something about the present market position of the stock, that there has been created a large short interest against actual holdings, and that the stock is being borrowed for delivery because the sellers for various reasons do not wish to part with their original lines. They have expected to be able to cover their short contracts at a profit while keeping their actual holdings intact. It is thought that there would be a limit to the amount of Union | terday its report for the December quarter. It is said that the big bucket shop combinations are playing the stock market for break. Their sheets, however, are light as compared with those that were wiped ou in the December break. One of the surest indications of the public's attitude toward speculation is the state of the bucket shop business. The bucket shops have steadily Employees of the United States Steel | been getting their usual share of the public' patronage, but the general interest in speculation has been somewhat backward since the first of the year. It has not been the kind | figures are: of bull market that appeals strongly to the outside imagination. The Western bucket shop people made a big killing in the break of the wheat market a few days ago, but their Eastern confreres have had no such visitation of fortune.

The office trader who determines to limit the loss on a speculative venture by entering stop order 2 or 8 per cent, behind him and who puts such an order in the hands of his broker is prone to assume, without giving the matter a great deal of thought, that knowledge of the transaction is confined to those of that office who are keeping his account It doesn't occur to him that it would be of any outside persons to know read *Policyholders' Committee, Equitable | about it. The broker, however, is too busy with orders at the market and other live matters to take upon himself the responsibility of attending personally to open or waiting orders. These he will put into the hands of specialists, who buy and sell for him at the members' commission of $2 a hundred shares. A Stock Exchange spec-cialist is a broker who confines his attention exclusively to a few inactive stocks or to one active stock. In a stock like Union Pacific, there may be three or four specialists. In an inactive stock the specialist is often the market in himself. He has the open orders both ways waiting orders to buy at certain prices and to sell at certain prices. prices and to sell at certain prices. The outside trader who thinks that the existence of his stop order is known only in the office where he has the account may be but one of several hundred miscellaneous speculators all following the same stock and all using the protection of stop loss orders. In the course of an active speculation there will be a large accumulation of such orders on the books of specialists. Suddenly the stocks upon which the strength of the outside speculation has converged, and which, for that reason, are full of stop loss orders, break from the Stock Exchange that the setback is due to the uncovering of "stops" by bear traders. This occurs so frequently that it is taken quite as a matter of course, and the traders whose stop orders have thus been preyed upon buy again, putting new limits on their losses, and sooner or later the shake-out is repeated. on the floor have access to the books of many specialists and are able to organize and conduct raids at the expense of stop orders. It is sometimes reported openly from the floor that stop orders will be found in a stock at a certain point and that traders are offering the market down in order to reach them. A stop loss order becomes operative at the market instantly upon a quotation being made at the corresponding price. Stocks are sold not necessarily at the prices at which they are stopped, but "at the market" as soon as the prices at which they are stopped soon as the prices at which they are stopped have been reached. Thus a transaction in Union Pacific at 130 would make all the tion at the market, and the stock stopped at 189 might be sold at 129% or 129%, or, in a wild market, at 129% or lower.

JUNK IN PACKAGE; MONEY GONE

$5,200 ROBBERY BETWEEN BOS-TON AND EAST WALPOLE.

Money Was to Be Used to Pay Off Mill Employees-Paper and Iron Spikes Substituted in Place of Paper Money and Silver-Original Wrapper Retained.

Boston, March 4.-Detectives have been at work since yesterday in an effort to get a clue to $5,200 in specie and bills which was stolen from the Earl and Prew Express Company some time between Thursday afternoon and Friday forenoon, but, so far as can be learned, no progress has been made in the case. >

The money was drawn from the National Union Bank of this city by F. W. Bird of Bird & Son, paper manufacturers at East Walpole, and was delivered to the express company; to be taken to East Walpole, where it was to be used to pay off the employees in the paper mill. When the box reached the paper mill, it was found to contain a quantity of paper and iron spikes It is believed that the box of old junk was substituted for the one containing the cash on the train between Boston and East Walpole. When the money was handed to the express company by Mr. Bird the package was sealed, and the next morning despatched from the office to the train for East Walpole. When it reached its destination the express agent there noticed that the seals had been broken. Upon the examination that was made at the mill, at which the agent was present, it was discovered that the original box had been taken and one of the same size containing spikes had been tied up in the original wrapper.

NEGRO FOR COLLECTOR HERE

William Clark, an old man who has been OF INTERNAL REVENUE-C. W. ANDERSON TO SUCCEED TREAT.

> Mr. Treat Is to He Treasurer of the United States in Place of Ellis H. Roberts -Mr. Anderson Is President Roosevelt's Personal Choice for Appointment

President Roosevelt has decided to appoint Charles W. Anderson, a negro, to the oost of Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second district of this city, in place of Charles H. Treat, who is to be made Treasurer of the United States to succeed Ellis H. Roberts. Mr. Roberts will retire next week. It was learned last night from an authoritative source that the prospective appointments of Messrs. Treat and Anderson were known several weeks age to Senators Platt and Depew. While the appointment of Mr. Treat to follow Mr. Roberts is to be made on the recommendations of the Senators, the selection of Mr. Anderson was personally made by the President and he has not consulted either of the Senators from this State about it.

In the last campaign Mr. Anderson did a great deal of important work for the Republican party, so much so that Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican national committee after the election said he would make it his personal business to tell the President how well the colored voters of this city had been organized for the support of the Republican ticket.

The making of Mr. Anderson a Collector of Internal Revenue will undoubtedly raise of Internal Revenue will undoubtedly, raise some opposition in this city. Although no open opposition has appeared, an effort was, made by the leaders of the county organization to induce Mr. Treat to hang on to the job he held as Collector of Internal Revenue. But Mr. Treat will get a salary of $8,000 a year and will get his name on the paper currency. As a revenue collector he got $4,500. Mr. Anderson is reputed to be one of the weakthest negroes in the city. He is an owner of a large amount of real estate and for several years he has out of his own pocket paid the expense of running the Colored Republican Club. He has for several years been the agent of the State Racing Commission for the collection of fees from the racing associations. In of fees from the racing associations.
